

Start with

-Who are you?

(Presentation with profession, name, school, country and other information you would like others to know about you)

Write about your experience in the YMP - your story!

Here are some guiding questions for inspiration:

-Why did you decide to become an YMP teacher?

-Why is it important to teach and learn about Sustainable Development?

-What is your experience of the YMP? What impact has the YMP had on you?

-What are the three best reasons to join the YMP as teacher based on your experience?

-What advice would you give to other teachers on how to successfully engage students in learning about sustainable development and the YMP?

You may want to answer some, or all of the questions above, or add anything you want. The questions do not need to be included in the text.

A guideline on how to write your blog post:

1. We would like the article to contain about 400-600 words.

2. Send it to admin@goymp.org

3. Please include a picture of yourself. It would be great to include a picture from your school with the YMP students as well!

4. Be personal - tell your story. My YMP-Story is an opportunity for you to tell your story, your point of view in your words, include personal reflections, anecdotes, and anything else you want to help you connect with the reader.
